Where: Fat Ass
Where: 107 Tower Road, Ottawa
Hash Cash: $10.00 for hash down-downs and food
Distance: Runners 5.58 Kms
Distance: Walkers ? 54:53 minutes
Hashers: 33 including several returnees!
Weather: At 7pm +4 Wind SW 23 Gusting 34 Kms

Was it the warmer weather or the promise of Fat Ass's cooking that brought several of the 'old time' hashers out for this event?

No doubt the real reason they decided to grace us with their presence was just the joy of running with the Ottawa Hash!

At the opening circle Fat Ass did warn us that there would be no checks on the night's event but there would be a runner/walker split. But we all know just how confused Fat Ass can be so no one really took any notice of this warning. At that time he also said that if the it was a bad trail Just Francisco was to take the blame because somehow he had been commandeered at the last minute.

The trail started over the snowy berms and through one of the Algonquin Collage parking lots. From here it was straight up Navaho Drive to Iris Street and the runner/walker split. At this point the walkers seemed to have lost their way because there is no track only a time. Maybe they just imagined they did the trail?

The runners were on along a slippery snow beaten ski trail/path adjacent to one of the Experimental Farm Pathways. Leading us along this narrow, slippery trail was one of the least likely of hashers to be an FRB - Bite

My Beaver! This youngster showed no fear as she made her way along a path that gave one the impression of tight rope walking!

Once back out onto the city streets at about the three and a half kilometre mark the hashers realized that FatAss had indeed set a trail with no checks! Thankfully the rehydration stop was not far off.

The warm fermented grape juice served up along with munchies and the usual hash liquid were all welcomed and enjoyed. From here it was a short distance to the ON IN.

Upon reaching the ON IN it was not long until the food covered the table and the hashers were digging into one of FatAss's multinational creations of rice, couscous, a chicken stew (no doubt with a fancy name) and bok chey. A chocolate cake was brought out after the circle to help celebrate all the hashie birthdays.

After the hoard had been fed the circle was called to order and the Grand Mattress began bringing in her list of miscreants. She then turned the circle over to the Religious Advisor who was quick off the mark bringing in a number of sinners who were on their knees in front of Mustard Balls' ski run.

When the hare made his way into the circle to receive accolades for his run he was truly shocked to only receive a unanimous POINT 69 for the run with no checks. To make up for the trail the chef received a 99.69 for the meal.
